A Victorian gold aquamarine necklace, c.1850, the centrepiece with a Lisbon cut aquamarine with a pear cut aquamarine at each side, all in clawed collets to scroll surrounds and joined by lengths of trace chain. A row of articulated scroll links at each side, to a two row trace link back chain, and scroll box clasp. Tested as approximately 15ct gold with 9ct gold trace chain. 405mm long, 26.76g

Condition Report

Chips to the point of one of the aquamarine. Some losses to the scroll surround to the collet of that aquamarine. Previous repairs visible to the underside of some of the scroll links.

One of the larger scroll links next to the centrepiece dented and cracked in one place.

One of the smaller scroll links missing a section of the scroll. Clasp secure.

Minor surface marks/scratches to gold.
